

pair of only partially worn shoes was found among the contributions sent to room 63 Pulitzer Building, that the "little girl" Annie could wear, though they were much too large.

James Ryan, the Cherry street father, was given employment Saturday, and when "The Evening World's" representative called yesterday afternoon the buxom wife was smiling, she was profuse in her expressions of gratitude, but declared that it would make her old mother turn in her grave if she accepted help when she didn't need it, and at her suggestion coal and some groceries were purchased for the lame widow in the rear tenement, and she and her half-witted son are comfortable for a time, at least.

The old man, John Ryan, found starving in West Thirty-ninth street, has been removed by a charity organization to a hospital.

The man's helper in the same block, Maria Smeo, mentioned Saturday, has found work.

Some of the Reasons Given By Bashful Couples to Be Wedded.

A practice which has been growing of late, and which sometimes causes funny stories, is that of suppressing the publication of marriage licenses, by having the names kept from the published list. All sorts of reasons and excuses are advanced by timid adventurers on the matrimonial sea as to why they don't want people to know they are going to be married. Some of the reasons are given below.

Don't Want Names Printed.

The first couple making this request were persons of average appearance and a little past the days of youth and girlhood. When asked their reason, they said, after much humming and hawing, that they were so old they somehow didn't want people to know they were so foolish as to get married. The clerk thought the reason good, and the request went.

Another Couple's Reason.

The next man who didn't want it known said: "If it gets in the papers there will be a blanketed racket with tin cans around my house, and I might have to hurt some one." Out of consideration for the "some one" his license is not on the list.

Another Couple's Reason.

A third man did not like to have his name and his bride's name appear alongside of those persons who made such an inconsiderate use of the "some one" in the spelling of their names, as is sometimes the case with imported citizens who change from their own names to the names of the people they marry. This gentleman was a little supercilious in his manner, and because of the freedom and equality existing in this country, his name is on the list.

Another Couple's Reason.

Another young man, with a blushing young girl, whispered his story in the clerk's ear. He wouldn't repeat it, but the names did not go on the list. Another lucky man had a friend in the court-house, and, in consequence, did not have to give a reason, and his secret remained locked in his breast.
